Jamaica at 50: A Nation on a Mission

Claudia/Cemme

Today, Jamaica celebrates 50 years of independence, a milestone that we should all take the time to reflect upon and celebrate. The journey to independence was not easy, especially for those who were part of the struggle for freedom. It was a time of sacrifice, resilience, and determination.

Jamaican Prime Minister the Most Hon. Portia Simpson Miller

The celebration of Jamaica’s 50th anniversary is a reminder of the hard work and dedication of our ancestors. It is a day to reflect on the progress we have made as a nation and to chart a course for our future.

While we celebrate the achievements of the past, we must also look to the future. The challenges that lie ahead will require a strong and united people. We must continue to work together to build a brighter tomorrow.

Salve Horwinka

The future of Jamaica is in our hands. We must remain vigilant and committed to the principles of democracy and justice.

Jamaica continues to leave an indelible mark on world stage

Tatsushi Ueshima

The world has changed significantly since Jamaica achieved independence, but we must not lose sight of our goals. We must continue to strive for social justice and economic development.

In closing, I wish to extend my wishes for the continued development and progress of Jamaica, and for the continued unity and prosperity of its people, and for the further strengthening of the ties between Jamaica and the world. I hope that this special year will be one of great achievements for Jamaica.
