Turkmen president's visit

2015: Year of neutrality and peace

Turkmenistan is a permanently neutral country, with its neutrality recognized by the global community through a U.N. General Assembly resolution passed on Dec. 12, 1995.

The peace-loving and peaceoriented foreign policy of Turk-menistan, conforming to the generally recognized principles of the world community and safeguarding the supreme national interests of Turkmenistan, embodies the unity of domestic and foreign policy, implemented under the leadership of President Gurbanguly Berdimuhamedov. The foreign policy doctrine encompasses the strengthening of the country's independence, preservation and promotion of peace, dynamic development of the national economy and implementation of market reforms. On the basis of these principles, Turkmenistan engages actively in international relations and global economic interaction.

The following are the conceptual parameters of Turkmenistan's foreign policy:

- Preserving and strengthening the state sovereignty of Turkmenistan and enhancing its role and standing in international relations;
- Creating favorable foreign policy conditions for the international development of the
- Upholding and implementing the national interests of Turkmenistan through all forms of diplomatic contacts, as prevalent in international dip-Îomatic practice;
- Ensuring security through political and diplomatic means;

- Developing constructive and mutually advantageous cooperation with all foreign partners on the basis of equality and
- Ensuring full compliance of foreign policy actions in accordance with international law and the U.N. charter.

Steadily following a commitment to international obligations, Turkmenistan is an active global participant, making worthy contributions to the cause of preserving and strengthening peace and secu-rity and pursuing the develop-ment of bilateral and multilateral cooperation in the international arena.

Turkmenistan has been actively involved in the fields of international relations, taking a respectable and worthy place in international politics, while enhancing mutually beneficial and equal cooperation with international organizations. Turk-menistan practices close and multifaceted cooperation with the U.N. as its main partner.

One of the main directions of the foreign policy of Turkmenistan is to build mutually beneficial multilateral and friendly relations with the countries of the world. In this regard, Turkmenistan maintains friendly and well-meaning relations with the Asia-Pacific region, which play an important role in geopolitics.

The concept of the foreign policy of Turkmenistan for the years 2013 to 2017 stressed that Turkmenistan pursue strategic benefits with Asia-Pacific countries and develop mutual cooperation and beneficial relations with these countries.

As is known, the visit of the president of Turkmenistan to Japan from Sept. 11 to 13, 2013 was successful as agreements signed during the visit opened the way for the development of our relations and provided impetus to the strengthening of our bilateral cooperation.

Over the years of cooperation, Japan and Turkmenistan have signed 46 international agreements on the intergovernmental and inter-sector levels, covering a large scope of bilateral relations.

Showing relatively similar or overlapping approaches to urgent global development issues, Japan and Turkmenistan are also enjoying good cooperation on a multilateral basis.

Based on past successes, Turkmen-Japanese relations are expected to further develop in the future.
